

MINER ENTOMBED
FOR FIVE DAYS

NEVADA CITY, Cal., Sept. 25.—For five days aged John Chambers lay entombed in a tunnel near Lehman, where he had dreamed of making it rich. He was rescued in dying condition yesterday and expired soon after being removed to the outer air. He was the victim of a stroke of paralysis.

Chambers disappeared five days ago. It was thought he had gone to Forest City. Yesterday, when it was ascertained that he was not there, John Crossetti made his way into the tunnel and there found the prospector lying face downward in an unconscious condition. Help was quickly summoned and the dying man removed to the bright sunshine. But he was past all earthly help and soon died.

Chambers was one of the early miners in the upper country. He was born at the Bay of Fundy sixty-seven years ago. After locating at the mines he changed his name for some unknown reason to John Nelson Dillon, and it was by this name that he was best known. Indeed, few knew but that was his true name. He made a fortune and lost it in speculating. At the time of his death he owned several valuable claims. He lived alone in a cabin.

WRONGED MAN'S
HORRIBLE REVENGE

[By Associated Press.]
ROME, Sept. 25.—The bell-ringer of a small village named Mallabergo has just taken a diabolical revenge upon the betrayer of his wife. The husband was proceeding to ring the bell for the service as usual when in the garret in the belfry he came upon his wife and her lover.

The lover was the parson of the church.

The wife managed to escape, but the parson was not so fortunate. Taking advantage of his bewilderment, the bell-ringer seized him and tied him by the neck to the clapper of the principal bell. Then the wronged husband commenced to chime the bell furiously with the result that almost every bone in the parson's body was broken.

Just at this time the congregation commenced to enter the church and the blood of the murdered man streamed down upon them from the belfry as they came in the door.

Completely horrified by the sight, they rushed up stairs and found the bell-ringer still pursuing his fiendish work.

The church was at once closed and the murderer arrested.

CALL ON
TO STRIKE

[By Associated Press.]
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The New York local commercial telegraphers' union voted tonight to call out all leased wire operators employed by the press and brokers offices in this city. Action by the national officers will be awaited before anything further is done. It was voted also to ask the national officers to issue a call for brokers and press telegraphers throughout the country to quit work. The demand upon the men who are now working under contract is not in the interests of those who have struck against the Western Union and Postal companies.

[By Associated Press.]
CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The national officers of the Telegraphers' Union declined tonight to express an opinion as to whether they would sanction the strike voted by the New York local.

"A special convention may be called to take up the matter when it comes before us officially," said National Secretary Wesley Russell. He added that similar action had been taken by about ten locals in different parts of the country.

CANNOT ENFORCE
FISHERY LAWS

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Sept. 25.—An imperial rescript forbidding the service by any colonial authority of any legal process regarding the fishing rights aboard any American vessel, and suspending all colonial statutes authorizing colonial officials to seize American vessels, was passed here today. It is believed that this will make it practically impossible for the premier to carry out the recently announced decision to enforce the colonial fishery laws.

SOUNDS JUST LIKE MILLERS.
PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 25.—Morristown, situated about seventy miles north of Phoenix, has been thrown into a fever of excitement by the discovery of gold nuggets in a well 250 feet deep. The nuggets were picked up in the well by H. N. Cox, who was digging the well in the hope of getting water. There were several men with Cox when the discovery was made and mining claims were staked off immediately. Enough gold was gotten from the well in nuggets to fill a teacup.

BEAUTY DOCTOR
UP AGAINST SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—Mrs. R. C. Haywood, a wealthy woman who spends her winters in Pasadena, and who is now at her home in Berkeley, invested $100 in a beauty bandage, which she claims destroyed her beauty.

Mrs. Haywood has brought suit against a firm of Los Angeles dermatologists for $5000 damages. The defendants named in the suit are Mrs. Ella Harris, her son, John T. Harris, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Hare. Mrs. Harris and her son have a place of business on South Broadway.

Two years ago Mrs. Haywood claims she had her face treated. The price for removing her wrinkles was fixed at $100.

The treatment was as follows: Mrs. Harris bandaged her customer's face by passing the cloth over her head and under her jaw. This was drawn tight and massage was administered. Mrs. Haywood's instructions were to talk without moving the lower jaw and to take nourishment that did not require maxillary action.

Mrs. Harris says she will be ready to show that her customer disturbed the bandage with much eating and talking.

Government Witness
Is Proven Perjurer

[By Associated Press.]
BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 25.—The first sensation in the trial of United States Senator William E. Borah came late today when Albert Klamop Nugent, the second witness produced by the government, admitted on cross examination that he committed perjury in taking out timber land claims; admitted that he had been promised absolute immunity by an officer of the Federal government for testimony; admitted that at the request of a Federal officer he had sworn to a complaint against a man whom he did not know, and lastly proclaimed that he believed it to be part of a bargain for immunity that he should swear to any complaint against any person regardless of any knowledge he might have as to the person's guilt. When the name of the Federal officer who induced him to sign the complaint was asked by Senator Borah's counsel, witness swore positively he could not remember it.

The day was given over to the introduction of a mass of paper on file in the land office here at Boise and to the evidence of two men who said they received money from John I. Wells with which to prove their timber land claims. Wells is one of the men indicted with Senator Borah.

Standard Oil Tricks
Exposed to the Light

[By Associated Press.]
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Interesting evidence that lay almost hidden in the voluminous schedule of oil tariffs submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Standard Oil Company, was unfolded today at a hearing in a Federal suit against the so-called oil trust, when Calvin N. Payne, vice-president of the National Transit Company, took the witness stand to tell about the various pipe lines of the combine over which he had supervision.

The schedule shows that the tariffs for transportation of crude oil by Standard pipe lines are fixed at Unionville, which is on the State line between New York and New Jersey and the center of a bridge located in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Frank B. Kellogg, conducting the Federal action, asked Payne if Unionville did not spring into existence in 1906, when the Hepburn bill, which provided that common carriers must publish tariff schedules, became a law. Payne testified that Unionville was located geographically in the summer of 1906 while he was abroad.

The government's counsel further developed that the Unionville pipes of the National Transit Company carrying oil from Olean, N. Y., and other western points, connected with the pipe line of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and that at the center of the bridge pipe line carrying oils of the Eureka Pipe Line Company, the Buckeye Pipe Line Company, the Southern Pennsylvania Pipe Line Company, and the National Transit Company from Lima, Ohio, to the seaboard, connects with the pipe line of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Payne said that as the lines of these companies ended at Unionville and the center of the bridge, tariff schedules are all fixed for those points. Kellogg sought to show that independent companies could not send oil to the seaboard over these lines because rates could not be obtained from points to the seaboard. Kellogg said the Standard would not publish rates on its pipe lines through New Jersey and as a consequence independents were shut out from tidewater.

Grafter Gallagher Is Still Flush With Coin

[By Associated Press.]
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Twice today during T. L. Ford's trial, wherein the chief counsel for the United Railroads is charged with bribery of public officials, it was affirmed that the confessed bribe-taking members of the board of supervisors would have voted to grant the United Railroads a franchise for the overhead trolley wire without the use of money, which is alleged to have been so lavishly distributed.

Chairman James L. Gallagher of the board of supervisors explicitly declared his belief that the franchise could have been secured without any attempt to influence the opinions of the members. Supervisor Sam Davis, the only other witness of the day, reiterated this assurance on his own account.

The most interesting feature of today's session was an attempt by Earl Rogers of the defense to show that Gallagher was at this time possessed of more money than he admitted having corruptly received from all sources. Witness, after appealing to the court to protect knowledge of his private affairs, admitted he had now in two safe deposit boxes between $30,000 and $35,000, part of which he declared to be the proceeds of bribery transactions. The motive of the defense became apparent when Rogers asked Gallagher point blank how he could have on hand more than he received if he had not received it from Randolph Spreckels, financial backer of the prosecution.

Assistant District Attorney Francis L. Heney later elicited from the witness that his savings prior to his becoming supervisor would have accounted for part of this sum.

TOOK GAMBLER'S
CHANCE AND LOST

SANTA ROSA, Sept. 25.—Al Grill, who gambled with a decision of the supreme court of California with his life as the stake, will be brought here from San Quentin for death sentence by Superior Judge Emmet Seawell for the murder of W. S. Pearce, an Alexander valley farmer.

Mae Pearce, the 16-year-old daughter of the murdered man, was the woman over whom the tragedy occurred. Pearce was shot to death as he lay in bed. Grill was placed under arrest and accused of the murder. It was known that Pearce objected to the attention Grill was paying to the daughter. Grill denied that he was guilty of murder, setting up the claim that the gun had been accidentally discharged.

The accused man had two trials. The jury in the first trial found him guilty of murder and fixed his punishment at imprisonment for life. This did not satisfy him.

"I'll take a gambler's chance," he said to his attorneys as he was asking them to appeal for a new trial.

At this second trial the jury found him guilty and fixed the punishment at death. Still confident of his luck, Grill appealed the case to the supreme court. Fate was against him, however, for the court recently affirmed the judgment and Grill will have the date for his execution fixed tomorrow.

FRIENDS READY TO RELEASE MURDERER

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—It is reported that if Frank J. Constantine, murderer of Mrs. Louis E. Gentry, had been given the death penalty, he would have been rescued by members of a secret society. This was the startling revelation made by the police today to Judge Kavanagh. According to the report, there were 200 members of this society in and near the court-room when the verdict was read, and they were prepared to make a desperate attempt to overpower the deputy sheriffs and save Constantine if the death penalty had been imposed.

This sensational discovery by the police follows closely on the heels of the escape of two men from jail. The instruments by means of which the escape was effected are believed to have been for Constantine's use, but the plot was frustrated by the prisoner's removal to another cell.

Acting on the advice of his attorneys, Constantine will not insist on a new trial, being satisfied to let well enough alone.

An American, who has been for some time seeking in Europe an automobile capable of exceeding 100 miles an hour, has at length secured the 200-horse power Darracq, which its owner, A. L. Guinness, ran on the Brooklands track today, covering a quarter of a mile in 7.8 seconds, which is equivalent to 115.4 miles an hour, the British record.

Ross bought the machine forthwith for $10,000. He will take it to California to compete in a twenty-mile race for a stake of $25,000.

PRESIDENT ENDS
HIS VACATION

OYSTER BAY, Sept. 25.—President Roosevelt began his journey to Washington at 10 o'clock this morning, ending his summer vacation, which was begun June 12th. The trip will be by special train to Long Island City, around the lower end of New York City by tugboat and from Jersey City to Washington. The special train is the one on which the president will make the trip which begins next Sunday.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Ethel and Quentin accompanied the president, the others being in school. Secretary Loebl and family, members of the executive staff, secret service guards and two express cars loaded with the president's horses and stable equipment preceded the special out of Oyster Bay last night, that they might make a part of the train at Jersey City. Villagers gathered at the station today and many shook hands with the president. He heartily expressed his pleasure at seeing his neighbors, with whom he has had opportunity to mingle but little this summer. The weather is ideal and the party is in high spirits.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—President Roosevelt and party reached Jersey City shortly before noon. The departure for Washington was postponed until 1 o'clock on account of the express car containing the president's horses not arriving from Oyster Bay on time.

ARE VENGEFUL
AGAINST TAYLOR

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 25.—Justice Goebel, a brother of the late Governor Goebel of Kentucky, residing in Phoenix, commenting on the affidavit made by a woman in Richmond, Ind., who alleges that Governor Goebel was killed by Turner Igo at the instigation of the son of John Sanford, says the story is pure fabrication.

He says the facts as set forth in the affidavit are so at variance with the proved facts that they cannot be considered. He says the only persons interested in the prosecution are himself and his brother, Arthur, of Cincinnati, and such friends as may aid them in avenging the death of the governor.

They have no desire to convict an innocent man, and thus shield the real murderer, and for this reason they have followed every reported clue, each of which, if not utterly discredited, was finally tracked back to Taylor and Powers.

Continuing, he said: "The prosecution, which has been conducted without abatement of enthusiasm for eight years, will be conducted as long as there is a Goebel, young or old, alive, and until the guilty parties have been brought to justice. We will get Governor Taylor sooner or later, as he cannot always find an asylum in Indiana."

the Warm Springs, Mont., asylum. He also asserts that he murdered an ex-Governor in Utah and killed some sixteen people in different parts of the country. Officers are inclined to believe part of his story and will investigate.
